And there I lay, till tyrant man 👗

Espied me, and conceived the plan

Of stealing me from where I lay,

I proved to be so dull and sour,

He could not make me say or do,

And next in government I came

Contending to support the same:

I at the same time did undertake

For I conceived it naught but true

That all was right, and so I tried

The statesman too is taught by me

Though I have spoke in age and youth,

Arrival of the Baltic. New York, April 6. The Baltic has arrived, bringing dates to te 24th.

The St. Louis arrived out Saturday. The four points guaranteeing the placing of the Danubian Provinces under the pro tection of the Four Powers, was unnani mously agreed to. Breadstuffs and provisions are steady, and prices are unchanged. The money market is easier. Consols for money are quoted at 924. The new steamer, City of Baltimore from Liverpool to Philadelphia, has been taken up by the French Government for six months, and left Liverpool for Marseilles, having in tow the American ship Ticonderoga, also employed by the French Government:

The Czar has made several speechesmild to the diplomatic body, strong to. the army, and on the whole, the language is interpreted in a pacific sense. The first of the four points, which has been unanimously agreed to at the Vienra conference, reads as follows : The abolition of the exclusive protectorate of Russia in Moldavia and Wallachia, the Sultan being placed under the guarantee of the five powers.

The latest dispatch, dated Vienna, Fri day evening, says that the conference is progressing favorably.

The second point was either settled today or will be to-morrow.

It must be repeated that the question of peace or war will not be decided until the third point is settled.

The Paris correspondent of the London Times telegraphs under date of Friday evening—The news from Vienna appears favorable to peace, and the people are disposed to believe that the conference will be attended with a happy result. Count Nesselrode will proceed to Vienna when negotiations will become critical. The new Czar gave strong evidence of abiding by the plan traced out by his father, and that he will make no concessions. Rumors are current of the new basis of

In my avocation I find men who by years of application in the counting-house, become expert Book Keepers, and although strong advocates of the science, yet think the counting-house the place to learn it. I have stated in Lee tures before, that I could give a scholar more instruction in the College Rooms, in a few months, than he can get by years of application in business. And why is this? In the first place, no man can teach what he does not understand, and not one in twenty can teach what he does understand, and, secondly, if the book-keeper does understand the art of teaching, he has not time to give the necessary instruction or to turn tutor to junior clerks.

But if this science can really be taught at a college why are not the graduates of our ordinary Colleges and Universities expert practical and scientific book-keepers. In the first place there is so much to learn at our Colleges and Universities, and short a time to do it in, that it is impossible to become expert in any science. by including the Eleventh and Twelfth general knowledge only is expected, an capacity to become expert in any branch of science or learning by subsequent study and application. the author having devoted his exclusive attention to the treatment of complaints peculiar to females, in prespect to which he is yearly consulted by thousands.

 In consequence of the universal popularity of the work, as evidenced by its extraordinary sale, various impositions have been attempted by imitations of title work as used to be attempted by imitations of title page, spurious editions, and surreptitious infringements of copyright, as well upon booksellers as upon the public, it has been found necessary, therefore, to CAUTION THE PUBLIC to buy no book unless the words "Dr. A. Gilbert, who had been attached to the astronomical service in Captain Cook's expediton to observe the transit of Venus, and whose name was conferred by the great navigator on "Gilbert's Island," resided at Gosport; where according to the fashion of the day, he, like the Count d' Artois, wore very tight leather-breeches. He had ordered his tailor to attend him one morning when his grand-daughter, who resided with him, had also ordered her shoemaker to wait upon her. The young lady was seated in the breakfast room, when the maker of the leather-breeches was shown in; and as she did not happen to know one handcraftsman more than the other, she at once in timated that she wished him to measure her for a pair of "leathers," for as she remarked, the wet weather was coming, and she felt cold in "cloth." The modest tailor could hardly believe his ears. "Measure you, miss?" said he with hesitation. "If you please," said the young lady, who was remarkable for much gravity of deportment; "and I have only to beg that you will give me plenty of room, for I am a great walker, and I do not like to wear anything that constrains me." "But, miss," exclaimed the poor fellow, in great perplexity, "I never in my life measur-ed a lady, I—," and there he paused.— "Are you not a lady's shoemaker?" was the query calmly put to him. "By no means, miss," said he, "I am a leather-breeches maker; and I have come to take measure lady became perplexed, too, but she recovady became perpresent, too, out she toot ered her self-possession after a good com-mon sense laugh, and sent the maker of the breeches to her grandpapa. breeches to her grandpapa.-
