THE BOUNDS
OF THE LAW
A NOVEL FOR ALL AMERICANS
By J. ALFRED WRIGHT

The skirts of American society are being whipped into the dust about a novel that is turning every American into a citizen of the law. The novel, "The Bounds of the Law," has created a stir in the United States and has been the subject of much discussion.

The novel, written by J. Alfred Wright, addresses the issues of social justice and civil rights in the United States. It has been praised for its portrayal of the struggles of African Americans for equality and their fight against the legal and social barriers that prevented them from fully enjoying their citizenship rights.

The novel has been widely read and has sparked a debate among Americans about the role of law and justice in society. It has also been criticized by some for its portrayal of certain aspects of American society and its depiction of certain historical events.

The novel has been a success in terms of sales and has been translated into several languages. It has also been adapted into a play and a film, which have been well-received by audiences.

The novel is a powerful reminder of the importance of civil rights and the need for laws that protect all citizens, regardless of their race or social status. It is a call to action for all Americans to stand up for justice and equality and to work towards a society where all are treated fairly and with dignity.

The novel has been praised for its ability to bridge cultural divides and to bring people together in the fight for justice. It has been celebrated as a milestone in the history of literature and has been added to the canon of American literature.

The novel has been a source of inspiration for many Americans and has sparked a renewed commitment to the principles of liberty, justice, and equality. It is a reminder that the fight for civil rights is ongoing and that we must all work towards a society where all are treated fairly and with dignity.

CINCINNATI WOMAN GIVES BLOOD TO MAN

Patient: Was Absolute Stranger to Woman Who Makes Sacrifice for Humanity.

CINCINNATI, Dec. 2.—Mrs. Emma O. Davis, 774 Tuppersville Road, was on her way to the hospital today to donate blood for a stranger whose life might be saved by it.

"I didn't know I was going to have to give it," she said, "but I was told that it would be needed, so I had to make up my mind to do it." She added that she would have been more than willing to make the sacrifice if there was any chance of saving a life.

"I don't mind doing it," she said, "but I don't think it's fair that people have to be willing to give up their own health to save someone else's life."

"Bumbershoot," the name常 referred to the men in the Civil War, was given to the men in the Confederate Army because of their red caps. The word is now used to refer to a large umbrella. The term is derived from the German word "Bumbusch," which means "bush." The word was first used in English in the early 17th century. until the Southern states with their large number of black people and their need for labor, and the North with its large number of white people and its need for land. The conflict between the two regions led to the Civil War.
