PRO-ALIENS SHOW CONCERN OVER TREND OF NEWS WRITERS

The World's Work Points Out Vast Number of Foreign-Born Lawyers in U. S.

Immigration Fight Recedes, Hottest Publications Pick Up Cudgel

(Special to Fiery Cross) WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 15.—Conservation has seized those who are lighting to keep American gates open to the flood of immigration and foreign-born lawyers in U. S. country taking on the light on unrestarted immigration and which was started by the Ku Klux Klan, there is much carrying and scurrying among the pro-alien forces. For January, in the United States, the Immigration Commission, the "Immigration Legal Team," it is pointed out that it is in this country for "an Aristotelian philosopher or a Russian mink to be admitted to sit in judgment as a peer on the immigration laws of this country. Magazines and newspapers are each day bringing forth new and vital reasons why the gates of the United States should be closed against the great influx of foreigners from America but bring their theories along with them. The pro-alien interest is now realizing more than ever that the battle started by the Ku Klux Klan, to keep America clear of foreign-born lawyers, is a battle that can not be stopped. Thousands of Alien Lawyers

In either the fact that out of more than eleven thousand lawyers in New York City, more than 50 per cent are of foreign birth, or foreign parents; the writer in the World's Work says: "In 1910, Philip Reed speaking before the American Bar Association, dwelt on the many and complex questions of vital interest to the country, such as the effects of taxation, the social structure and other important questions which would be solved by the application of the new conditions of the old principles of justice out of which grew the new conditions. Reed, who was observed to have been a man who understood these principles, their history, their reason, their spirit, their right application, in other words, the man who was a lawyer of the highest intellectual and moral integrity, deeply versed in the law and the spirit of the law, and the spirit of our laws and of our jurisprudence. Yet, as he pointed out, a very large part of our lawyers in the large cities, particularly in the large cities, are of young men who have come from the countries of eastern Europe, . . . from countries where there was a highly developed jurisprudence, a highly developed and advanced, all these traditions and fundamental ideas which differentiate the Continental systems of jurisprudence from the Anglo-American system. These young men, our lawyers, by the tens of thousands, with continental ideas born in them, with no training for an examination, get them out. They are not to be feared or discredited out of a book, but they are to be feared and adapted to our ideas only by con-fact with life, contact with American life, some conception of what the underlying basis of honesty and justice are.

"Contrast this with the editorial statement in a Polish paper published in Warsaw, which says on a page in a Polish journal here, and a Polish clerk there, followed by an appeal for the Polish voters to 'stand together' if they want more officers. Contrast the warning spoken before American lawyers with the situation in some of our largest cities and states where many of the magistrates in our lower courts and not a few of the judges in our higher courts are of foreign birth. Contrast it with the fact that in the richest and busiest metropolis of the United States of some eleven thousand lawyers, more than 10 per cent are of foreign birth or of foreign parentage. Contrast it with the fact that the Education of the Association of the Bar of the city of New York, under the chairmanship of the dean of the Columbia Law School, has gone on emphasizing in part: 'Many of these men come to the bar with little knowledge of American institutions and with little or no appreciation of those ideals and traditions which have in the past dominated the spirit of our people.' The result is that the bar is carrying an almost insupportable burden of a large membership, uninitiated by education or experience to bear its responsibilities and without naturally from manifold its traditions."

SENATE, January 9

SENATE, January 9. At 5:03 P. M. On the thirty-second ballot Senator Smith, Democrat of South Carolina, was elected chairman of the committee on the Judiciary. Mr. Jones, Democrat, of Alabama, a former service man, charged Republican leaders with blocking legislation for relief of disabled veterans by delaying organization of the House committee to handle such cases. Thursday, January 10. The Appropriations committee reported the bill for clearing $140,000,000 below the estimates.

New Home of Marion Klansmen

The Marion, Ohio, Klansmen have bought the building formerly owned by the Marion, Ohio, Klansmen and have moved into the building. The purchase price is said to have been $125,000. A large auditorium, is on the second floor of the building. The first floor contains a public market, which was formally opened last week. This feature of the enterprise is to be conducted strictly on business principles.

SEEKS NOMINATION ON ANTI-KLAN VOTE

Underwood of Alabama: Openly Against Klan in Fight for Presidency (Bureau Publication and Education) Senator Underwood, of Alabama, has the idea that he can be elected President of the United States by making war on the Klan. His announcement along these lines is one of the sensations in Washington this week. Democratic Senator from Alabama has the idea that he can be elected President of the United States by making war on the Klan. their constituents, even wailing nervously for news from back home, but they are not so easily won over. He secures honest information. He speaks upon his home news paper but it happens to be an opposition newspaper, so there is no relief there. The telegraph brings him great volumes of messages, but he is not so easily won over. He has no way of determining the greatest good of the greatest number. He therefore used his own judgment, and votes as he pleases. How a democratic government can be expected to be transacted in the interest of the public with such an impossible distance or medium between officials and the voters themselves passes understanding.
