Imperial Wizard Speaks
 The main speaker of the day was Imperial Wizard Hiram Wesley Evans, who delivered a long address to a record-breaking crowd that cheered and applauded him continually. Mr. Evans took up all the different reasons for which the Klan had been organized, and discussed each one at length, having the undivided attention of the vast throngs during the entire time. When on the subject of public schools, the Imperial Wizard said that he did not believe in slavery, but that he did believe in the right of the white race to govern itself and half-breed could not exist. This he likened to the school situation, saying that neither could a country half school and half public school exist. This, together with other remarks, made him the loudest and longest applause of the afternoon.

Taking up the subject of the order being strictly Protestant, and the opposition that has been presented, he said that he was not making any apology for this being a Protestant country. The answer, "No one," came from a hundred thousand throats in such volume that the walls fairly echoed with the words. The Imperial Wizard's speech was followed by talks given by different speakers, all of whom were received with enthusiasm by the crowd.

When the speeches were over for the afternoon, preparations were then made for the parade which got under way about six o'clock. The parade presented a deserted appearance, and there were no more than a few hundred persons, but the parade was not a parade, it was a demonstration. It was estimated that there were at least two hundred thousand people on the grounds when the grand parade came in the way of a gigantic procession, which brought cheers of admiration from the crowd by its beauty.

School House Rioters Cheers
 The "Klans" school house" brought cheers from the crowd when it blazed forth and the words "one flag, one language, one country," also brought the crowd to its feet when fireworks formed the letters. Shriek cries and yells could be heard from the top of the hill in the distance, and the crowd was so dense that it was impossible to see the whole section from where the yells and whoops came was alive with red-blooded American boys. Their enthusiasm was appreciated by the older ones present, who constantly on the go all through the day. The boys had headquarters on the grounds, and were giving out literature concerning their order and were also selling Klan novelties. Thousands of candidates were initiated during the evening, and then all through the day, and there were so many that this was impossible, and separate classes were given the work in different parts of the field.

There were many comments on the efficient way in which the crowd was handled, and the fact that those who endeavored the affair, Klan Kops were posted close together for miles along the roads leading to the grounds, directing the long rows of automobiles in the most efficient manner, and all and pieces running to the field kept a steady supply of fresh water. The DURHAM, N. C., July 7.—The reorganized Klan at Durham received its new charter the other evening at a gathering which will be long remembered by local Klansmen and visitors. After the formal delivery of church and social service, the Grand Dragon made a very interesting and informal talk. "Smokes" followed the speeches and true Klanish spirit of good fellowship was never more apparent than on this occasion.

 Whole Village of Ancients Lived in Single Building in New Mexico

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 7.—The National Geographical Society's expedition, headed by Neil M. Judd, is now working in the ruins of Pueblo Bonito, N. M., giant "apartment house" or prehistoric houses. More than 300 rooms have been cleared and many kivas, or circular ceremonial chambers, already have been exposed. The explorations revealed that Pueblo Bonito was a busy village within a single dwelling. When finished, it stood four stories high, and contained more than 1,000 rooms and sheltered 1,000 or more persons.

No written record or bloody public inscription was left by these ancient Americans. But it already is possible to piece together their life story from this evidence of the rooms and the buildings and objects covered from their deserted dwelling.

Their daily activities, their civic organizations, their communal enterprises, and their struggles against more warlike tribes can be pictured. It is evident that the Bonitos, who lived in the ruins of the great canyon national monument, were the most pretentious settlement in the southwestern United States in pre-Columbian times.

With the penetration of the Pueblo Bonito ruins, the early history of America has begun to attract world interest. The ruins are being examined with the sending of a National Geographic society expedition to uncover the great mound of Cuicuilco in the Valley of Mexico, which may be 8,000 years old.

Harvest of an Outraged Democracy?

(Special to The Flery Cross)

(Special to The Flory Cross)
NEW YORK, July 5.—Old "Rum, Rum, Rum" was the refrain of the thousands of the nation, thousands of our citizens have become so deeply engrossed in the question of education that they have made it their life's work and it is through their efforts that the schools have attained the high standard of perfection they now enjoy.

With more than one million children at work at an age when they should be developing their minds, by attending public school, it is only to be expected that sooner or later the handicap that is suffered by these children will come to light in the realization that they are unable to earn sufficient money with which

To prevent this, parents are duty bound to urge the immediate consideration of the educational bill upon the reconvening of Congress, urging this body to pass the bill that secures the necessities of life. Ask Standard Term

The only condition that is set out in the proposed act before the states will receive aid from the federal government, is that a common school term of at least twenty-six weeks be adopted.

One of the truths that has been brought out in the discussions of the educational bill is the fact that in 1920, $1,035,000,000 was expended in education; but to offset this cost something like $311,000,000 was spent by the people of this nation on tobacco and candies; the cigarettes secured from the pocketbooks

Through ignorance, the people believe that the church can do no wrong, that money is given for future happiness and the priests use the money for happiness now. And what is this modernism which the church points to as a grim destroyer of faith? It is the modernism which lavishes red hats on those of its "knights who 'fought' against it most successfully." It is the progress of the human mind along lines of rational investigation and discovery.

"As Above, So Below"

The peak of the so-called "wave of antagonism to all things foreign" was not reached in 1929, as many wise "interpreters of things they know nothing about" declare. It continues; it increases in helpful potency. It was a natural reaction to the "wave of the future" in the movement of self-protection—a kind of subconscious "saving instinct" in mass consciousness—fast as certain laws within the blood against "alien invasion."

In this very effect of the nation to protect itself is seen the operation of the old truth: "As above, so below." The campaign has never been dominated by blind emotions. It has followed a leadership as clear as the sun.

Calling the Klan names has only created within the Klan a protective instinct. To say that the Klan is an outgrowth of "fear psychology" is Freudian and foolish. The Klan has never reacted under pressure.

Fifty years ago, when the native Americans were voluntarily eliminating themselves and their descendants by his "wide-open-to-all" policy. Today the Klan sees the same thing—the Klan sees it by the action of Europe.

There is no other honest way in which to contemplate the subject—no other deduction to make. We do not wall to distrust all things foreign, because of its core foreign customs and institutions.

American and the Klan leads the van in its struggle for national salvation. There is no cowardice in it—not in native America.

George Washington declared that "of all the dispositions and habits which lead to political prosperity, religion and morality are indispensable supports." All the great leaders of the world have emphasized the spiritual note.

When Roosevelt was asked in Los Angeles for his favorite sentiment, he wrote this verse of Scripture: "He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doeth the Lord require of thee, and to walk humbly with thy God" (Micah 6:8).

The late Woodrow Wilson declared: "Christianity gives us the secret of national, social, and individual well-being." G. Harding, shortly before his inauguration said: "I want you to know I believe in a religious republic. I do not see how a just government can exist in the world without coming in contact with God."

President Calvin Coolidge declared: "We need faith in the United States; that faith in moral forces without which all else is vain. The moral forces are the spiritual, mental and mental and spiritual." God. Loyalty to country—to law—to God.

MEN ARE VICTIMS OF BOYISH PRANK; 2 DEAD

EXETER, N. H., July 4.—Two men, one of them a policeman, were shot to death here last night while attempting to quell a disturbance caused by boys. Parker McDuffey, an aged man, near whose home the shooting occurred, was arrested. Parishman Albert L. Colson and Arthur C. Beall.

Colson went to McDuffey's home to quiet a number of boys who had assembled there to tease the old man. The officer had taken Beall along to assist him.

It was reported that McDuffey came out of the house with a pistol when the two men approached and shot them. McDuffey is 70 years old.

Among the Interesting Women

Among the interesting women noted were: Mrs. Rosa McKay, of Arizona; serving her third term as Mrs. Nona Lawrence Smith of Ashburn, Ga., the editor of The Wire Grass Farmer, and Mrs. Myrtle Tallierro Dixon, of Illinois, a director of the First National Bank of Roseville.

Missouri seems to abound in resourceful women, who were all for McAdoo.

During the blatant Smith demonstration Mrs. Parsons, of Unionville, Mo., rolled up balls of paper and rolled them over the heads of the largest horns each time the big wild instruments came by.

The bandsmen came to know her before the demonstration ended and god-naturally held up their horns so she could chuck them more conveniently.

Mrs. Leroy Springs, of South Carolina, who was delegated to read the report of the credentials committee, was so pretty that it is said that John Keegan, of St. Louis, seized the standard. Mrs. A. C. Parsons, of Khrig City, rushed to save it, and was joined by Mrs. Milford Riege, and round higher girls on the stand and then the two men.

The police intervened and the standard was put back into its place.
