WASHINGTON, D.C., Aug. 20.—That La Follette will carry the banner of the Roman hierarchy in the coming presidential election is seen in the slowly gravitating to the Wisconsin senator of the alien organizations and the fervent appeal of leaders to get behind the third party candidate. The bitter denunciation of the millions of Protestants who make up the Ku Klux Klan came as a blow to the many Protestant admirers of La Follette. Quite naturally the moves being made by foreign interests in the half of the third party leader are not made in the open. The swing toward La Follette by aliens, however, is known to be gaining impetus each day.

One of the chief opponents of the Klan in the county is Kim Coleback, president of the board of trustees, who declared emphatically that he would not support the parade. He said that the parade would be a disgrace to the county and that he would do everything in his power to prevent it. He said that he would not support the parade and that he would do everything in his power to prevent it.

Just before the parade was to start "broom squads" were called into play to sweep the streets of tacks. Bunches of tacks were swept from the streets into the gutter by the volunteer workers. The parade was moved out of the city and was held in a field near the city limits. The parade was held in a field near the city limits.

Despite the persistent efforts of the opposition, which efforts consisted of an attempt to pass laws prohibiting Klan parades, intimidation, the strewing of bushes of tacks along the city streets, and every other conceivable means to prevent it, a Klan parade was held here last Friday night which was witnessed by more than twenty thousand persons. The parade was held in a field near the city limits.

Foreign Influences, Whipped Badly in New York Convention and Discouraged at Cleveland Gathering, Stage a Comeback—Sore Spots Created Do Not Heal Readily and Many Honors Result—Eastern States Holding Large Allen and Wet Vote Are Promised La Follette. It is Hoped

It is impossible to buy a drink of liquor in Williamson county," said the fearless leader as he leaned back in a high chair with his feet on a table. "It is now gone. All the crooks who made their headquarters in Herrin, secure in their belief of protection, he said, are now gone.

When the new Protestant hospital gets into operation it will be under the control of a board composed of the members of each Protestant church in the city. Each Protestant church in the city will have one seat on the board. It will be the duty of the board to obtain the necessary funds for the hospital.
